About Tradoing

Tradoing is markets research that never makes up the numbers. Every figure traces to a real, checkable source; if a claim cannot be grounded, it is not shown. We are building the grounded research layer for analysts and investors, founder-led and early-stage.

The role

You research companies, sectors, and markets and turn them into clear, cited analysis. Every number you publish is one you can defend, traced to a real, checkable source, with nothing invented in between.

What you will do

- Research equities, sectors, and markets and write cited analysis.
- Separate measured figures from estimates, and label which is which.
- Build and defend a citation trail for every published number.
- Work with engineering to sharpen how research is grounded and sourced.

What you bring

- 2+ years in equity or market research, or a strong analytical track record.
- Fluency reading filings, disclosures, and primary sources.
- Rigor: you never publish a number you cannot trace.
- Clear writing for a professional finance audience.

Nice to have

- CFA progress, or a finance or economics background.
- Experience with financial data tools or terminals.
- Coverage of Asian markets.

What we offer

- Fully remote. Work from anywhere in your timezone.

- Real ownership of your area from day one.
- A small, senior team and direct founder access.
- Async-first, low-meeting culture.
